Don't really understand question. I didn't apply for any courses mainly not relevant but also pressure of work

I attended other courses/conferences during the year, and it's difficult to get time and permission to go to every course I'd like to

Was not employed in DCU until end April 2003, therefore was not in a position to attend most of these courses.

some 'relevance' ans really mean 'no training needed in this area'

In general, do you feel ANLTC courses are relevant to your work?

10 Some
2 None

Comments

They seem to provide training I have received in house

What course(s) would you like to see in the future?

Training on how to teach students and different methods of teaching.

courses on HTML XML webpages customer care for users with English as a second language

perhaps an overview of how different libraries operate inter library loans depts

More on online tutorials, online quizzes, FAQs. The Virtual Reference Desk

More courses of a practical nature such as the DDC 22 and LOC Subject Heading courses held this year.

dealing with library users from different cultures and that dont have very good english

Database/ Internet training

Apart from its role as an organiser of training, what other roles do you think ANLTC should have?

Staff swop - a staff member could go and work in another library for a period of time, maybe during the summer, when it is quieter.

I think it is fine as it is I suppose you could encourage libraries to spend more money on training and development of their staff but best of luck

It's doing fine with concentrating on training.

We would welcome any other comments you have

Although the courses you run are often not relevant to me I do think that you provide an excellent range of quality courses.

1.Perhaps ANLTC should broaden its membership to include ITs? 2. Have a paid administrative staff to take that end of course organisation away from the committee, who could then concentrate on strategic issues relating to the courses.
